Bird Fair in Kansas

Congratulations are in order to the Northeast Kansas Cage Bird Club in Topeka Kansas on their success at their first annual Bird Fair held in the Kansas Natl. Guard Armory on August 20th, 1994. This group of hardworking, bird loving people put a lot of effort in hosting their very first bird fair. There was a constant flow of curious people moving through the halls and President Joe Bolin has every right to be proud of his group. Pati Hazell, Kansas State Coordinator, and S/C Regional V-P Richard Hazell were on hand at Joe's request to represent AFA. Pati was handfeeding a clutch of Budgies and that caused many curious people to spend time at the AFA table to see this event.

6th Annual Mardi Gras Avicultural Conference

The Mardi Gras Avicultural Conference brings a unique flair to the field of avian education. The conference, hosted by Dr. Gregory Rich, is held each year 10 days prior to Mardi Gras Day, the biggest and most fun filled party one can imagine. Parades actually start 14 days prior to Mardi Gras. Each year the conference highlights some of the country's most notable lecturers in the field of avian medicine, aviculture and conservation. Past speakers have included Drs. Branson Ritchie, Susan Clubb, Brian Speer, Marge Wissman, Greg Harrison and aviculturists Rick Jordan, Laurella Desborough and Gloria Allen.

This year the conference brings Dr. Jack Gaskin, Dr. Jeff Jenkins and Joanne Abramson to New Orleans for an exciting day of avian education. The date was February 19th. The location was the Jefferson Orleans South in Metairie (one block from the Landmark Hotel).
Information Needed on the Indian Hill Mynah

Ivano Mortaruolo has asked for information on the Indian Hill Mynah Gracula religiosa for his book. Information is requested on breeding in captivity, importations, historic and folk lore, biology, curious behavior and any aberrant mutations (albino, leucism, etc.). Photos of nests in nature are also desired. Please contact:

Estrildid Breeding Project

This project acts as a clearing-house of information for U.S. finch breeders. If someone has an odd bird and is looking for a mate, has an excess of birds of a certain species, or simply would like to exchange information, they can call either the East or West Coast Breeding Coordinator to be placed in contact with someone with a similar need. This program is mainly designed for the non-established species since their survival in aviculture is particularly threatened.

One need not be a member of the Estrildid Forum to be a participant in these projects. There are no dues, sign-up fees, leg band requirements or other restrictions to meet in order to participate in these programs.

Immediate Opening For AFA Members From New Hampshire & Rhode Island

The American Federation of Aviculture is presently seeking a dedicated individual, residing in Rhode Island or New Hampshire, to become the AFA State Coordinator for their state. No experience is necessary, only a sincere desire to monitor state legislation, promote AFA at state-wide avian events, and a willingness to recruit AFA members. Training materials will be provided. AFA State Coordinators become automatic members of the AFA House of Delegates, receive quarterly reports, and will be listed in the AFA WATCHBIRD.

If you are interested in volunteering and growing with a foremost avian conservation organization in U.S. aviculture, please call or write: Linda S. Rubin, Northeast Regional Vice President, 93 Woodcliff Road, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167, or 617-469-0557.

From the USA to Australia — to Speak at a Bird Meeting!

Bob Beech of Greensboro, North Carolina, was the guest speaker at the Avicultural Society of Australia’s October 1994 monthly meeting. Among the 160 members present were three interstate visitors: Jack Hannant - Adelaide, South Australia; Fred Bohner - Howlong, New South Wales; and Geoff Girvan - Eulanora, Queensland.

When Barry Hutchins and Graeme Hyde of Australia met Bob and Marie Beech at the AFA convention in Knoxville (August 1994) they discussed, among many other things, the virtues and the pleasure if Bob and Marie traveled to Australia for a bird-watching trip. As secretary of the ASA, Graeme told Bob that when their (possible) trip eventuated to let him know the dates so it could be arranged for Bob to speak at the Society’s monthly meeting in Melbourne, Victoria.

Little did Graeme realize he’d hear from Bob just a few weeks later, but a quick re-arrangement of the previously planned program made it possible for Bob Beech to be the speaker. His topic was “Experiences in Breeding Parrots in America.” The color slide presentation covered the quite different methods used to breed and handrear birds at Beech’s Nest Bird Ranch. Few Australians breed parrots indoors - let alone in trailers (called semi-trailers in Australia).

Bob and his wife Marie own and operate Beech’s Nest Bird Ranch on a 28 acre farm, raising birds for the American pet bird trade. The whole operation as outlined by Bob in his address enabled those present to appreciate and understand the “hows” and “whys” of the enterprise.

The results achieved by Bob and Marie, and their staff, prove the success of the project. They have now handreared over 2,000 parrots and currently have thirty trailers and 250 breeding pairs of African Grey Parrots!

At the end of the presentation the president of the Avicultural Society of Australia, John Buchan, moved a warm and eloquent vote of thanks to the speaker for his informative address.

AFA Was There

by Laurella Desborough

Representatives from 119 countries attended COP 9, the Ninth Convention of the Parties, Non-governmental observers (NGO's) numbered 221. Several non-party governments attended as observers. The next CITES meeting will be held in Zimbabwe in the first half of 1997.

The meetings were held daily for two weeks and the U.S. government, as the host country, presented each participant with two CITES binders that were four inches thick with printed material related to the proposals and matters under discussion.

Among the NGO's were many "user" groups: alligator ranchers from Australia, turtle ranchers from Central America, exotic fish importers, members of whaling associations, collectors of coral, safari hunters (trophy and photography), pet industry representatives, lawyers and lobbyists who represent both sides of the importation issues; and two avicultural representatives: Al McNabney, Chair of the AFA CITES Committee and Laurella Desborough, President of AFA. These two attended the meetings and manned an AFA exhibit booth in the Exhibit Hall and met with representatives of other countries.

There were 20 exhibit booths. Most represented conservation organizations such as World Wildlife Fund. Several conservation groups were from other countries such as Taiwan and Japan. Aviculture was well represented by the high profile AFA exhibit booth. The 12 page AFA CITES Supplement was provided to representatives of each country and all NGO's, and also made available to all CITES attendees. The supplement contained information about aviculture, captive breeding, conservation projects and research projects funded by aviculturists.

Major issues at CITES of interest to the avicultural community:

1. Disposition of Confiscated Wildlife, or what to do with confiscated reptiles, birds, animals and plants. Some countries wanted the wildlife returned. The problem of releasing disease carriers into wild populations is a major concern when returning confiscated wildlife. Specific procedures need to be in place to determine the health status of the animals. Confiscated wildlife may include very common or rare species.

2. Transportation of Wildlife was discussed. Several recent studies of birds shipped into Europe from countries of origin provided the surprising information that only 1 to 2% mortality occurred. These figures are in direct conflict with those often reported by animal rights organizations.

3. Enforcement of CITES regulations worldwide was a major concern of the conference participants and was strongly promoted by animal rights organizations.

4. Delegates reviewed the status of national legislation within countries which would require complying with CITES.

5. Sustainable Use was a very hot issue with third world countries pushing for it. The debate is between those who believe that the only way to save wildlife is to prohibit trade and those who think that for wildlife to survive, it must provide economic benefits to the local human population. Our impression was that sustainable use will increase in importance as an important conservation tool.

6. Species proposals included tigers, whales, elephants, rhinos, and also reptiles and plants. Indonesia proposed that the Goffin's Cockatoo be transferred from Appendix I to Appendix
II. This proposal was withdrawn prior to a vote. Concerns were voiced about the adequacy of the survey done on the populations in the wild and about the adequacy of trade controls. Italy’s proposal to list the Edible-nest Swiftlets withdrawn in favor of a resolution to hold a workshop on sustainable use.

This is a brief condensed report on the CITES meeting. Al McNabney has prepared a more extensive and detailed report which will be sent to delegates.

Attention

African Parrots Lovers . . .

“THE FEATHER TREE” is proud to present the 10 most popular parrots of Africa and Madagascar together in one elegantly crafted, 23 x 30, full color lithograph. Never before done, the photographers have managed to capture the individual personalities and charm of each bird.

The 10 domestically bred birds featured are: Grey Parrot, Timneh, Rueppell’s, Red-bellied, Brown-headed, Meyer’s, Senegal, Jardines, Cape, and Greater Vasa Parrot. Information is given for each bird including age, gender and bred by. On the back is a compelling message of conservation and the importance of captive breeding. For those of you who love these birds, "The Feather Tree", and its message, deserves a prominent position in your home or work place. When comparing Meyer’s to Rueppell’s, Congo to Timneh’s, it will make an excellent educational tool for those retail shops and individuals working with psittacines. “The Feather Tree” is available in either a matte or gloss finish, both are suitable for framing.

Trade Show Notice and Northeast Avicultural Seminar And Annual AFA Northeast Meeting

The Aviculturists of Greater Boston/Boston Cockatiel Society, Inc. will be hosting their first Northeast Avicultural Seminar on April 22, 1995 at the Franklin Park Zoo in Boston, MA. South American theme: Keynote Speaker Jerry Jennings, CA: The Neotropical Rainforest; Franklin Park Zoo Bird Curator Frederick Beall on Hyacinth Macaws; AFA Conservation Chair Kevin Gorman, NY: AFA Red Siskin Project; avian veterinarians, legislative panel, catered lunch, and zoo tour. HOST OF THE 1994 AFA NORTHEAST MEETING. For registration materials, contact: Linda S. Rubin, 93 Woodcliff Road, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167.
A successful first AFA Northeast Meeting held during 1994 has prompted the announcement of the Second Annual AFA Northeast Meeting and Avicultural Seminar in Boston this spring. The seminar meeting, sponsored by Aviculturists of Greater Boston, Inc. (formerly known as the Boston Cockatiel Society, Inc.), will be held Saturday, April 22, 1995, at the Franklin Park Zoo, in Boston, MA.

AFA members and guests are invited to register for the full day seminar which includes distinguished national speakers, a legislative panel discussion, the annual AFA Northeast meeting, plus a catered Central/South American theme luncheon, with an opportunity to view zoo exhibits and the Franklin Park's World of Birds.

The featured speakers this year include AFA Founder Jerry Jennings of California, owner of Emerald Forest Bird Gardens and director of the Toucan Preservation Center, who will give the keynote address and present a talk entitled "Walk Through A Neotropical Rainforest"; AFA Conservation Chairman Kevin Gorman of New York will speak on "The AFA Red Siskin Project"; Franklin Park Zoo Bird Curator Frederick Beall will present a talk entitled "Breeding Hyacinthine Macaws at Franklin Park Zoo"; and AFA Avian Research Chairman Dr. Bill Sager of the Littleton Animal Hospital in Massachusetts will present a "First-aid Workshop with Live Demonstration on Zoo Birds".

In addition, a legislative panel discussion on the regulations of the Wild Bird Conservation Act will be held by AFA Legal Council and attorney Gary Lilienthal, AFA Founder and attorney Jerry Jennings, and AFA Legislative Vice President Janet Lilienthal. The AFA Northeast Meeting for state coordinators, club delegates, members, and guests, will be held during seminar. A festive catered luncheon with dishes from Latin America, Ecuador, Venezuela, and Peru, will be included to accent the Central/South American theme of the seminar topics.

A percentage of seminar proceeds will be donated to both the AFA Legal Defense Fund, and the Franklin Park Zoo bird department. Pre-registration is $30 per person by April 15th, with limited seating available. On-site registration is $40 per person and begins at 8:00 a.m. Checks should be made payable to Boston Cockatiel Society, Inc. For pre-registration materials, contact Linda S. Rubin, AFA Northeast Meeting and Avicultural Seminar, 93 Woodcliff Road, Chestnut Hill, MA 02167, or phone 617-469-0557, or fax 617-469-0368.

Many bird farms across America have been destroyed by uninsured losses; from western wildfires to eastern hurricanes. Most losses were uninsured because prohibitive insurance costs kept breeders from purchasing coverage.

In light of what happened, we worked to get an insurance program at very affordable rates. This program was designed to protect bird investments and enable breeders to restock after a loss and is available only through EBBAA. This insurance even covers babies on a short-term basis! It is underwritten by Lloyd's of London, a world-renowned insurance carrier.

Coverages available: Fire, Smoke, Explosion, Windstorm, Hail, Tornado, Flood, Earthquake, Building Collapse, Electrocu­tion and Riot. Coverage is also available for theft, birds being transported to shows or point of sale and death due to disease or illness.

Write for a no-obligation breeders' business insurance quotation to Exotic Bird Breeders' Association of America.
