Winners — 1980 Photo Contest

There were many beautiful entries in the 1980 Photo Contest and the judges were faced with the difficult task of choosing the following winners. The entries were put into categories of color prints, color slides and black and white. The judges based their decisions on artistic composition, clarity of subject matter and how well each species was represented photographically.

The winning entries in the color print and black and white print categories are featured here. The winners from the color slide category will appear in the next issue of Watchbird.
