Breeding Psittacines in Captivity Seminar

Sunday, January 29, 1989

Sponsored by the Avian Research Fund

Emeryville, California
(San Francisco area)

This seminar has been planned to cover as much information as possible in one day on the breeding of psittacine birds. Aviculturists specializing in the breeding of certain species have been selected to make slide and lecture presentations on those birds. These presentations will cover the details of breeding set-ups, breeding behaviors, nest boxes, aviaries or cages, diets, and expectations regarding productivity of the specific species. Veterinarians will cover psittacine anatomy and physiology, diseases of the reproductive system, psittacosis, psittacine beak and feather syndrome, and management of infectious diseases. Also, a new systematic approach to breeding productivity will be introduced. The goals of these lectures are to increase the successful production of healthy offspring.

All profits from the seminar are donated to avian research: American Federation of Aviculture; Association of Avian Veterinarians, and Dept. of Avian Sciences at UC Davis, California.

The seminar will be held at the Holiday Inn, Bay Bridge at 1800 Powell Street, Emeryville, California. This hotel is easily accessible from the Oakland Airport or the San Francisco Airport and is located immediately off 880 near the intersection of major freeways and the Bay Bridge leading to San Francisco from Oakland or Berkeley.

Seminar recipients will receive a soft-bound copy of the presentations of the speakers as they register on Sunday morning. Participants and speakers are provided with an early morning refreshment break with coffee, tea, and breakfast treats, a buffet luncheon at the Top O' The Inn Banquet Room overlooking the San Francisco Bay on all sides, an afternoon coffee break and a cocktail party in the evening, also located at the Top O' The Inn Banquet Room. This party includes a smashing selection of foods and a no-host bar.

A convention rate of $70 per night has been arranged with the Holiday Inn. Special discount airfares are also available through American Airlines, including 45% off full coach fare. These travel and lodging arrangements can be made by contacting Andrea Burhol, (800) 727-2225 or (415) 421-2225.

Individuals or businesses dealing in birds or bird equipment and supplies may advertise in the Proceedings of the Seminar. With camera ready copy, full page ads, $60; half page, $40. Ads that are not camera ready: full page ads $110; half page, $70.

The 1988 Avian Pediatric Seminar was an outstanding success. The speakers, aviculturists and veterinarians who donated their time, energy and expertise made the seminar and informative and exciting event. The purpose of these seminars is to provide information and to raise funds to donate to research. Both of these goals were met in our 1988 seminar. Aviculturists and veterinarians from around the country as well as locally were able to meet together. The Avian Research Fund was able to donate $2,666 to each of the following: American Federation of Aviculture, Association of Avian Veterinarians and Dept. of Avian Sciences at UC Davis. We hope to be able to increase that amount next year. Copies of the 1988 Avian Pediatric Seminar Proceedings are available for $20 plus $2 postage & handling. Cassette tapes and video tapes are also available. For further information about purchasing copies of the 1988 Seminar Proceedings or further information on the next seminar in 1989, please send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Avian Research Fund, P.O. Box 203, Alamo, CA 94507-0203.
